

The Mirror

We grow, we live, we love – and walk through life looking at everyone else

If you're lucky like me you live in the sun hold the hand of your love and walk just as one

But bad times are good when they force us to see the mirror of life with questions for the me

Is it you, is it him, is it who I want to be when I look in the mirror, it may not be me

Am I good, am I bad, do I offer enough to earn the respect of the ones that I love

These questions of life are the ones we all hold and ask for forgiveness or just to be bold

But rays of life throw shadows on our eyes and blind us to the fact that we all need to rise to stand up and love even the ones we don't know because love is best shown when we shine from below

So when you look in the mirror is it you that you see?
Or better yet, is it the you that you want you to be?

Have a Merry Christmas and Happy Hanukkah!
